VISITORS WELCOME

THROUGHOUT THE YEAR - : FROM SPRING TO WINTER

Cultural Directions

The gladiolus is easy to grow. It will do well in almost any good garden soil, but a rich, sandy loam is best.

Do not plant in the shade of trees or buildings. Especially stay away from trees and shrubs, whose tiny roots suck all the moisture out of the ground in a wide circle.

May be planted from middle of April to latter part of May. Plant in rows, in four or five-inch deep trenches, five to six inches between each bulb in the row and at least twenty inches between the rows.

Keep the top soil continually loose and free from weeds. Never allow a hard crust to form after rain or watering. In case of a long severe drought, soak the soil thoroughly once a week at least. Constant cultivation will also help wonderfully.

In cutting the flower spike allow at least four leaves to remain on the stalk. It weakens the bulb to cut stem too low.

Do not plant gladiolus in the same patch many years in succession. New ground each year is best. Do not use horse manure as fertilizer. Ground fertilized with old cow manure the previous year is best.

Mark each variety with its proper name, written on a tag, tied to a stake. At blooming time it will add to your pleasure to know the right name of each variety.

Dig bulbs in the late fall and, immediately after digging, cut the stem close to the bulb. Use a sharp knife or a small pruning shear, so you do not tear the husk.

Dry them in open air for a week or two, but protect them from frost at nights. Remove the roots and dirt and the old, decayed bulb. Save the bulblets and plant them again in the spring. Sow them thickly, like peas, in shallow trenches, about two inches deep. They will bloom the second year.

When properly dried and cured store your bulbs away for the winter in a dry, frostproof place in the cellar.

On account of its extraordinary keeping qualities, the gladiolus surpasses all other flowers for cutting purposes. A bouquet can be kept fresh in a vase for a week or more. Not only that, but the blooms will prove ever larger, brighter and more beautiful and perfect in every way when cut than when out in the sunny garden.

For the sick-room and hospital and for decorating churches and halls the gladiolus is the ideal flower, not only because of its beauty and stateliness and almost unlimited color range, but also because of its lack of fragrance.

All Glad lovers should join the American Gladiolus Society. The cost is only $2.00 per year, which includes the Official Bulletin, a monthly magazine devoted exclusively to the gladiolus. Mail subscription to Mr. Roscoe Huff, Goshen, Ind., or include $2.00 with your order and we will see that you are enrolled as a member.

Better Flowers, a magazine devoted to roses and flower garden culture in the Pacific Northwest, published monthly, is in our estimation the leading floral magazine on the coast, and the subscription rate is only $1.00 per year. Send your subscriptions to us.

The book Gladiolus, by F. F. Rockwell, covers valuable information on gladiolus culture for both amateur and professional and at a very moderate price. Anyone desiring a copy can secure same, cloth bound, for $1.00 prepaid.

If you prefer the above in preference to the extras as listed in catalog, we shall be pleased to send you either the magazine or book on a $20.00 order, the American Gladiolus Society membership on a $25.00 order or all three on a $40.00 order.
